BY JAMES PRESTON

The Senate Small Business Committee is planning a series of hearings and studies expected to result in a comprehensive legislative program affecting every company employing 500 or fewer workers. The committee's major policy during the next two years will be to make certain everything possible is done to preserve and strengthen small business.

An Industrial Standards Committee is being set up by the Commerce Department. The committee is to advise the department and American Standards Association on future standards, including consumer goods standards.

The Senate Education and Labor Committee has been told by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) that the pending federal-aid-to-education bill would lead to federal control over state educational policies.

Christian Service Society Has Regular Monthly Meeting

Woman's Society for Christian Service of Proximity Methodist church met Monday night at the church for the regular monthly meeting.

Using as her subject "Behold I Stand at the Door and Knock", Mrs. H. B. Ritter based her meditation around stories of the American Indian's breaking away from old paths to broader highways of living and applied her stories to Christian life today. An article on the American Indian was read by Mrs. Ralph Ritter who earlier in the program furnished instrumental music.

Mrs. H. J. Elkins presided in the absence of the president. Members heard a message sponsored by Greensboro Council of Church Women urging them to attend World Day of Prayer at First Presbyterian church of Greensboro which is taking place today.

"Soldiers Of Production" Rallies Begin At Local Mills

WHITE OAK LOCAL NEWS

Dr. Allen Stockdale To Speak; Group Singing To Be Held

Walter Lee Lineback, S. C. with the Seabees, now stationed in Rhode Island, is visiting his wife, who formerly was Miss Alma Dudley, at their home on the McKnight mill road. Seaman Lineback worked at the White Oak mill for many years before entering the service.

Mrs. Carl W. Williams, who before her recent marriage was Miss Louise Hester, returned Thursday after spending a week in Laurel, Md., with her husband. Mrs. Williams is making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hester, Cypress street.

Staff Sgt. Roy H. Brown, from Camp Stoneman, San Francisco, Calif., arrived Tuesday for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Della Pace, 1303 17th street.

Herman H. Pace, S. C. Merchant Marines, reported last week to Charleston, S. C., after spending one and one-half months with his mother, Mrs. V. A. Pace, 1303 17th street.

Mr. Frank Martin, 1301 17th street, has returned home from St. Leo's hospital, where he has been a recent patient.

Ensign G. W. Clay Jr., stationed with the Naval Air Forces in Pensacola, Fla., returned last week after a few days visit with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Clay Sr. Jack Leonard, S. C. from New York, accompanied him on this trip.

Mrs. H. Pennington spent last week in Gibsonville as guest of her sister, Mrs. Ogburn Ingram.

Harold Smith, photographer's mate, stationed at Pawtucket River, Md., spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Smith, Vine street. He will return Thursday of this week for his marriage Friday at the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, to Miss Helen Andrews, also of Greensboro.

Pfc. Robert Lucas, who has been on duty in the Southwest Pacific for two years, arrived Friday night from the Naval hospital, Portsmouth, Va., for a visit with his family, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Lucas, 2404 Spruce street.

Pvt. J. B. Yates Jr., has recently received a medical discharge from the Army after being wounded in New Caledonia, where he served for seven months. He and Mrs. Yates, formerly Velno Simmons, left last Thursday after a week's visit with his parents on 17th street, for Atlanta, Ga., where he has accepted a job with the Post Office Department.

Pfc. Lee Nance returned to Fort Jackson, S. C., after spending several days last week with his father, H. C. Nance, 1300 17th street. Pfc. Nance has been in the States for one year after three years in Trinidad, and has just completed a Radio course at Fort Sills, Okla. On his way home he was injured in Memphis, Tenn., and was in a hospital there for seven days. His father, Mrs. Nance and Miss Doris Lewey visited him during his stay in Memphis.

Dr. Stockdale has addressed hundreds of thousands of employees and employers all over the United States. He says, "Teamwork of employer and employee, which has made wartime production records, will be the foundation for the America of tomorrow."

Son of a machinist and cabinet maker, Dr. Stockdale's first job was as a farm hand. After working his way through college, he was graduated from Boston University School of Theology, and later held major pastorates in Boston, Chicago, Toledo and Washington, D. C. During the first World War he obtained a leave of absence from his church and served in France as a Red Cross field director, with rank of Captain.

Sponsored by the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce, "soldiers of production" rallies have been held in other leading industrial plants in and around Greensboro during the past two weeks.

Language differences between the United States and Great Britain can still confuse us. Here are a few revelations to keep in mind: suspenders-braces; crackers-biscuits; elevators-lifts; apartments-flats; molasses-black treacle.

MacArthur-Nimitz Combine

General MacArthur's stock has certainly risen during the past few months. It is our opinion that this nation is indeed fortunate to have a leader such as General MacArthur in the Pacific, particularly since he, as probably no other military leader, knows the Pacific.

His recent successes in the Philippines and particularly the capture of Manila will cause his name to be written well in the pages of history.

We would not in any way dim the brilliance of his masterful campaign, but we do not want to overlook those great naval and military leaders who have supplemented the ability and shrewdness of General MacArthur. Particularly do we want to pay tribute to Admiral Nimitz, who not only has demonstrated splendid military ability but has also shown that he possesses that most beneficial characteristic, the ability to work well with others. The very fact that Admiral Nimitz and General MacArthur, both great leaders in their own name, can work so well together as a team reflects credit upon both men. We, therefore, as American citizens respectfully pay tribute to the MacArthur-Nimitz combine.

Let's Emulate Our Fighters

Today as we can begin to see in the dim distance reflections of victory lights, we all should become very humble and thoughtful, because red blood stains the base of those lights.

There seems to have been a growing tendency during the last few months toward criticism. Too little thought has been given to the whys and wherefores which may cause us inconveniences or make us work a little harder and make us tackle new problems.

When we grow tired, when we become vexed, let us think for just one minute about the problems of the boys on the battle lines.

We recently heard a commentator tell of experiences at the battle fronts. He made the statement that the boys under fire appear to be more considerate of each other and more thoughtful of those back home.

Can we not emulate their examples while under conditions which are truly a picnic compared with the conditions of the boys overseas but probably a little more difficult than in years past, by being considerate of each other, and by all means being thoughtful of the boys who are fighting?

After all, most of the reasons which make our jobs and our living conditions more difficult have a direct bearing upon the welfare of our fighting men. As an example, when mills make duck today, they do not make duck because they want to or because they can make money out of it, but because it is needed to fight this war. The changes that are incident to the making of duck, therefore, are not caused by desires of anyone who has selfish motives but because they are necessary to fight this war and to furnish our soldiers and sailors with needed material.

If we would only stop to think, we would all realize, regardless of who we are, that we need more now than ever before to cooperate and not to be critical of each other.

Let's also not overlook the fact that the more we cooperate and the less we are critical and throw obstacles in the way of the most efficient operations, the sooner we can relieve ourselves of these longer hours and abnormal living conditions, which at times cause us to have a bad taste in our mouths.

We, therefore, urge for ourselves and others more considerate thinking and the greatest possible degree of cooperation for our ultimate common good.

The British View

Last spring a group of British textile men visited our plants to observe our methods, machinery, and productive skill. Many of us met them or heard them speak and can recall the humor and interest they displayed. Greensboro was one of many textile centers they surveyed.

In their official report of the junket, the Britishers pay high compliment to American mechanical efficiency while patriotically claiming that their own spinners, weavers, carders, and finishers are our equal in manual skill though poor equipment handicaps their production.

"The spacing in machinery in the (U.S.) mills, greatly aided by the adoption of (modern and efficient) methods, is much better, and creates better conditions for the operative," says the report.

Here in our United States we have the best working conditions, the highest living standards, the greatest rate of pay of any industrial community on earth. Our plants have the most modern machinery and are planned by skilled engineers. Our comfort, health, and safety have high priorities. Our earnings are unbelievable to many foreigners.

In "Personal Journal" for November 1943, an English personnel manager complains of his locality: "This place is full of old fashioned shabby factories built years ago, and an enormous amount of war work is being done in them." We should need vivid imaginations to picture how much superior are our own working and living conditions to those of our contemporaries in England and other countries. We take our blessings for granted and notice them only when they are missing.

We see American production and American mechanical genius in our daily work and read of their accomplishments in our daily papers. We know that American military men are supplied by the greatest flow of industrial production ever known to men. We should take great pride in being on our jobs, doing our part in this masterpiece of production.

Up Production Cut Cost Of DDT

In line with industry's pledge to put on the market the finest products that can be made, at the lowest prices for which they can be sold, the DuPont company has reduced the price of DDT, potent insecticide ingredient, 40 per cent since July.

The company also disclosed its new plant in Grasselli, N. J., is now producing the insecticide at a rate two and one-half times designed capacity.

T. J. Shropshire Dies At Residence Here

Funeral for Thomas Joseph Shropshire, 84, who died at his residence, 2009 Poplar street, Monday night, was held Wednesday at Newlyn Street Methodist church by Rev. C. W. Russell, pastor, assisted by Elder G. W. Hill, pastor of Hillsdale Baptist church. Burial was in the Hillsdale church cemetery.

Employed at Revolution mills for 12 years, he formerly served as deputy sheriff in Henry county, Va., his birthplace. He had been retired from active business for several years. Mr. Shropshire was a member of Hillsdale Baptist church.

Surviving are four sons, Maj. R. A. Shropshire, with the Army in Thomasville, Ga.; W. B. Concord, F. S. Danville, and K. A. Leaksville; four daughters, Mrs. C. H. Martin, Portsmouth, Va.; Mrs. J. C. Stevens and Misses Josie and Bessie Shropshire of Greensboro; two brothers, George and Poet Shropshire, Leaksville; a sister, Mrs. M. T. Gillie, Spray; 19 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were: Floyd Leach, R. D. Brady, Jesse Grady, Squire Chandler, J. L. Meadows and F. L. Welch.

Chester Bowles, director of the office of Price Administration was a boy scout.

U. S. WAR PRISONERS FEAR WE UNDERESTIMATE GERMAN PEOPLE

American prisoners of war in German prison camps cannot understand why strikes are permitted in our defense industries and seem to feel that Americans as a whole do not understand the terrible seriousness of this war, according to Larry Allen, noted war correspondent who spent twenty months in Axis prison camps.

And German newspapers are making the most of these defense strikes as a means of stiffening German resistance.

Allen's first-hand impressions of what American prisoners think about in German prison camps are given in an article in the January Cosmopolitan magazine in which he lists as the major thoughts of the American captives:

"How anyone could strike in a defense industry in the United States when men were dying for their country, and why the President and Congress did not outlaw all walkouts for the duration.

"That we didn't want silly sentimental letters from loved ones back home, but all the news they could put into them.

"That our home folks should write more and more often and send only food in private parcels, for that was what we needed most.

"That anyone in the United States who complains about conditions or food rationing ought to have a taste of life behind barbed wire, for then he would appreciate how much he has.

"Whether, when it was all over and we got back home, we should see the usual flag-waving and after that get a gentle brush-off—'Sorry, buddy, no jobs open'."

But the principal concern of the American prisoners appears to be that the homefront has no realization of what we are up against, according to Allen, who quotes Lieutenant Thomas Holt of Oak Ridge, N. C., as saying:

"You know this worries me. Some people back home think this is going to be a walkaway, but over here we know the Germans will fight as long as Hitler lives. This might go on for years unless we put into it everything we've got."

"I know, too, from my own experience," Allen states, "that the Germans are bitter in their hatred of us and our Allies and appear determined to fight to the last gasp."

Another significant phase of munitions manufacture has been added to the long list as the rocket production lines at the National Tube Co's McKeesport Pa., works passes from experimental to full production stages.

Firms' Reemployment Programs Await Veterans Of War

Heroes of every battlefield, many wearing the Purple Heart, and asking only a job and a chance to live life in the America they love, are getting that chance today as they don blue jeans or civvies and go back to work.

Jobs are waiting—for them and for millions more who will come home before and after final V-day—because industry has carefully worked-out plans for their employment and re-adjustment to civilian life.

The scope of these plans and the detail in which they are being developed indicate that industry is fully aware of the social and economic problems, present and future, which so many Americans are facing. Management is proceeding, moreover, to prove that these problems can be solved better through initiative of business men than through direct government control.

Among programs recently announced is that of the Owens-Illinois Glass company, with main offices in Toledo, O., for employees returning to sales or junior executive positions.

Vet Refresher Courses

The company is successfully speeding indoctrination of these veterans by refresher courses which the men take along with salesmen and executives who have been continuously with the company. Salesmen with uninterrupted experience are able to acquaint the veterans with wartime aspects of selling, and fall into the role of unofficial tutors.

More than 5,500 Owens-Illinois employees are on military leave, J. Preston Lewis, president, reports. General Electric company, trying in "Curly" Lawson and "Shrimp" Riter decided Saturday morning to go fishing. It was a warm day and they said it was a good pastime. That afternoon "Curly" and Billy paraded up Vine street, and with them was a 7½ pound bass. It's a challenge to all you fishermen. When you top that bass, let "Curly" and Billy know.

The Sky Raiders of White Oak still remained unbeaten in the Frontiersman league Saturday morning. They bumped off the Sky Crackers in an exciting game which ended 44-29. Ward and Self led the winners, while with industry's announced program for creating jobs and more earnings for all, has already taken into its ranks 2,300 former employees honorably discharged from active military duty and 1,300 not previously employed. Former salesmen are started off with a tour of the company's factories, which brings them up to date and seems to help in the adjustment process. Records show that 48,848 employees have been called into service.

"We will have jobs waiting," C. E. Wilson, president, promises.

Alcoa's Plans

The Aluminum company of America, Pitts., has completed a program for reemploying 26,000 workers now in the armed forces, thus doing its part to initiate the "process of prosperity" which industry predicts can lead the world into an era of peace and plenty greater than any yet seen. The plan goes far beyond federal requirements, according to R. C. Turner, personnel manager, and will help veterans readjust to normal life.

Among other industrial firms having reemployment plans to operation are U. S. Steel, International Harvester Co., Chicago; Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co., Milwaukee; General Motors Corp., New York; Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, Ill.; International Business Machines Co., New York; Radio Corp. of America, New York; Westinghouse Electric and Mfg. Co., Pitts.; Ford Motor Co., Detroit; Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp., San Diego; Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Burbank, Calif.; Northrup Aircraft, Inc., Los Angeles; Hudson Motor Car Co., Detroit; National Cash Register Co., Dayton, Ohio; Goodrich Tire and Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio; Cooper-Bessemer Co., Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

Cates and Mason starred for the losers.

Billy Foster is looking for somebody to tame him down in shooting marbles. Bill will be hanging out around White Oak Drug store, so if you want to lose some mibs, just play him. We hear his pop's pretty good too.

Raymond Smith, star for White Oak Jr. varsity last year, now in the navy, is home on his first furlough. He has been hanging around the Y, trying to catch up on his sports.

Pet Dairy defeated White Oak Juniors, Monday night in a thrilling contest which saw White Oak leading at the half 15-10. But as the minutes faded away, Pet took the lead and downed the White Oak club 43-27. Starting for White Oak were: Ward, Stone, Cates, Weaver and McDaniel. (Note: He passed!)

At Proximity, White Oak varsity tamed down the undefeated Proximity five, 29-23.
